PRICING SCHEME LITIGATION AGAINST BIG PHARMA: INSULIN

INSULIN

is a medication used by millions of Americans to regulate their blood sugar levels and manage diabetes.

PRICE RANGE

for insulin today can range from $300 to $700, despite costing manufacturers as little as $2 to produce.

SINCE 2003

6 large corporations have been able to successfully exploit the U.S. healthcare system through a conspiracy to intentionally hike insulin prices and line their pockets through kickback schemes and agreements.

6 CORPORATIONS

- 3 dominant insulin manufacturers:
 - Eli Lilly, Novo Nordisk & Sanofi
- 3 major PBMs:
 - Express Scripts, CVS Caremark, and OptumRx

CONGRESS

passed the 2022 Inflation Reduction Act to impose a $35 cap per monthly prescription for Medicare enrollees. Had these caps been in effect in 2020, over $761M could have been saved.

We are leading the charge to ensure that self-insured governmental entities and private companies recover the burdensome cost of generic drugs and insulin products.

The recently created

MDL 3080

In re Insulin Pricing Litigation

is before Judge Brian Martinotti and Magistrate Judge Rukhsana I. Singh in the District Court for the District of New Jersey
