LEAD CONTAMINATION AND PUBLIC WATER CONTAMINATION

NEW JERSEY

Napoli Shkolnik PLLC served a Notice of Claim against the New Jersey State District Superintendent, the principal of New Jersey Regional Day and the New Jersey Department of Education on behalf of a Newark family alleging their child was exposed to lead and other toxic substances in the drinking water of the Newark Public School system.

Multiple samples taken at New Jersey Regional Day show elevated lead levels higher than the legal limit set forth under the federal Safe Drinking Water Act.

NEW YORK

The firm filed a class action lawsuit in the Northern District of New York on behalf of Hoosick Falls, New York residents Bryan and Kary Schrom against Saint-Gobain Performance Plastics Corp. (Saint-Gobain) and Honeywell International, Inc. (Honeywell). The class-action complaint seeks to certify two separate classes: one for property damage and another for bodily injury, both resulting from the man-made chemical Perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA) contamination in the municipal water supply.

MICHIGAN

We filed a lawsuit in the Eastern District of Michigan on behalf of Flint, Michigan residents Luke Waid and Michelle Rodriguez and their daughter Sophia against Governor Richard Dale Snyder, et.al.

The Flint water crisis made national headlines earlier in 2015 after the City of Flint switched to a new water source as a money-saving measure. Officials failed to treat the water as required under the Safe Drinking Water Act, and as a result lead from pipes have contaminated the water supply relied upon by nearly 100,000 residents. Thousands of families and their children continue to be exposed to dangerous levels of lead.

REAUTHORIZATION OF THE SEPTEMBER 11TH VICTIM
COMPENSATION FUND (VCF) CLAIM FILING EXTENSION

NAPOLI SHKOLNIK PLLC HIRES D.C. LOBBYISTS ON BEHALF OF FLINT WATER CRISIS VICTIMS

As reported by The Washington Post, The Boston Globe, Politico, The Hill and other news outlets, Napoli Shkolnik PLLC has hired Washington Lobbyists to push Congress to create a victim compensation fund for people affected by the Michigan city's contaminated drinking water. If approved by Congress, the fund could draw from federal and state money to pay for residents' health costs. The Flint water crisis has made national headlines after the City of Flint switched to a new water source as a money-saving measure. However, officials failed to treat the water to avoid lead in the pipes from contaminating the water, as required under the Safe Drinking Water Act. This led to thousands of residents being exposed to dangerous levels of lead.

We have filed several lawsuits on behalf of families with children suffering from lead poisoning. "Lead poisoning is an insidious disease," says Partner Hunter Shkolnik. "We know the brain is permanently and irreversibly damaged but it doesn't manifest itself immediately. These children have been pushed so far down now they cannot ever achieve what was expected of them."
